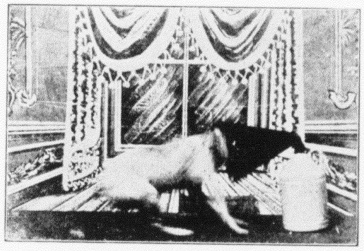
HIS MASTER'S BREATH

LENGTH 75 FEET PRICE $8.25

This Film is the counterpart of the Film "His Master's Voice." We first see the master indulging in a few glasses of whiskey. He is so delighted with his drinks that he puts a funnel upon the bottle to inhale the perfume of this beautiful drink. He then leaves the room while the dog enters. The dog jumping upon the table smells his master's breath out of the whiskey bottle. He tries to jump in the bottle to be nearer to his master's breath. The breath, however, is too strong and we see the dog laying dead upon the table.



An exceedingly funny Film which in connection with the Film "His Master's Voice" will make a big hit wherever exhibited. (See page 7.)

COMIC SCENES

DISAGREEABLE FIVE O'CLOCK.

An old swell enters into a pastrycook's shop. Seduced by the charms of the pastrycook's wife, he indulges in familiarities which the latter accepts only because she does not wish to displease a customer. But the husband turns up beating up cream, and seeing the old satyr's ways, requests him to get off. The latter is so much disturbed that he takes the wrong door and goes out through the kitchen, thinking he goes out of the shop. The pastrycook avails himself of it to pour the cream into the customer's hat which remained upon a table. The old swell enters into the shop again, takes his hat, and when he puts it on receives the whole of its contents upon his head and trousers. Blinded and completely astounded, he throws a table down as he runs away and comes back again to recriminate for having been so badly treated. Length, 100 feet. Price, $11.00.

BEHIND THE LENS.

A midget comes to a photographer's to have his picture taken. While the photographer is behind the lens, many comic scenes happen before the lens, so that the photographer is unable to take the picture. The scene is very amusing, is full of fun and must be seen to be appreciated. Length, 115 feet. Price, $12.65.

LOVE AT EACH FLOOR.

A college boy spends his time in looking through key-holes into every lodging of a four-story house. He seems extremely interested. However, when he gets to the fourth floor, he has such a scene before his eyes, that scared to death, he rushes down stairs with such a speed, showing the extent of his fright. Length, 280 feet. Price, $30.80.

THE CLEVER BAKER.

A most comical picture which is bound to make a hit. Length, 65 feet. Price, $7.15.

A SCANDAL IN A STAIRCASE.

An old "beau" calling on a lady friend is closely followed by his own wife. The latter bursts into the room, where, after discovering the culprit hidden under a table cloth, she chases the two out and pursues them into the staircase, hitting them with her umbrella. Length, 132 feet. Price, $14.52.

A DOORPORTER'S HORRIBLE END.

Whilst two furniture-removers are hard at work, a young cook's apprentice amuses himself by watering them as they pass with a little pump which had been left in the vestibule by the doorporter who had fallen asleep behind the door. The youngster having recommenced his game, the workmen wonder where the illtimed and disagreeable shower-baths are coming from. They did not perceive the boy at first, who had hidden himself behind some flowerpots, but they catch sight of the doorporter whom they believe to be the guilty person. Then with a formidable effort, they push the door, crushing the poor man who falls down as flat as a pancake. Length, 97 feet. Price, $10.67.

SCENES AT EVERY DOOR.

A door-keeper has just received the mail for the whole house, and he goes up for the distribution not without casting a discret glance in every apartment through the key-hole. At the fourth floor a strong smell of burn draws his attention, and he hurriedly looks inside. He suddenly withdraws horror-stricken; a man is burning, and while the door-keeper rushes down stairs without thinking to bring assistance, the door opens and the burning man falls down suffocated. The precipitated flight of the inhabitants from floor to floor, the arrival of firemen and the working of the fire-engines makes it very realistic, and therefore a successful picture. Length, 395 feet. Price, $43.45.

THE TOP-HAT.

A little tot sees what father does with the opera hat and she thinks she can do the same with the high hat. The result is that the high hat is out of business. Very funny. Length, 82 feet. Price, $9.02.
